MONDAY MORNING......OCTOBER 22, 1866.

IN MEMORY OF WALTER SAVAGE LAN-DOR.

Back to the flower-town, side by side,
The bright months bring,
New-bors, the bridgroom and the bride,
Freedom and Spring.

The sweet lands laugh from one to see, Filled full of enn; All things come back to her, being free; All things but one.

In many a tender wheaten plot,
Flowere that were dead
Live, and old sams revive; but not
That holler head.

By this white wandering waste of sea, Far north, I hear One face shall never turn to me As once this year.

Shall never smile and turn and rest On mine as there. For one most sacred hand be prest Upon my hair.

I came as one whose thoughts half linger,

The youngest to the oldest singer That England bore.

I found him whom I shall not find Till all grief end, In hollest age our mightiest mind, Father and friend.

But thou, if anything endure, if hope there be, O spirit that man's life left pure, Man's death set free.

Not with disdain of days that were, Look earthword now; Let dreams revive the reverend hair, The imperial brow;

Come back in sleep, for in the life Where thou art not We find none like thee. Time and strife And the world's lot

Move thee no more; but love at least And reverent heart May move thee, royal and released, Soul, as then art

And then, his Pierence, to thy trust Receive and keep, Keep safe his dedicated dust, His sacred sleep.

So shall thy lovers, come from far, Mix with thy name, As moving star with evening star, Ills families fame.——Swinb
